I agree with position 4 because the parent can't do the job alone the school needs to help out with food and stuff like that. and I partly agree with position 3 because schools are not to tell us what to eat how much to exercise because it is our body and we do what we want to do no matter what.

Parents should be responsible for feeding us healthy food. Parents can't do the job alone, because they always have to buy us stuff and that can be very expensive schools should help parents support the children in making good choices about their health. Schools should also provide P.E. so that kids are in good condition. In conclusion parents and schools should work together so we could be very healthy.
